Highly Enriched Uranium has been produced at considerable public expense. If "down blending" to Low Enriched Uranium is to be effected, I hope that such down blending is to 19% (thus still meeting the category of Low Enriched Uranium).

My hope is based upon (1) a basic aversion to destroying value; (2) an interest in not disrupting existing industry (enrichment of natural uranium to levels currently used to fuel American light water reactors); and (3) the potential benefit of an established (on-hand) supply of 19% LEU for the development of improved reactor designs.

Thank you for considering my thoughts on this matter.
